Exhibition overview

FESSH 2014 is a combined meeting - the 19th congress of the FESSH and the 11th congress of the EFSHT.

The Federation of Hand-Surgery Societies of Europe (FESSH) aims to define the highest standards for treatment in hand pathologies, to identify the optimal training programs in its areas of specialization while promoting uniformity among the different countries of Europe and to implement and sustain study and research.

The European Federation of Societies for Hand Therapy (EFSHT), founded in Paris in 1989, is a non profit organisation representing 1800 therapists all over Europe. Its aim is to:

- increase the interest in and exchange of knowledge about hand therapy
- coordinate activities among the European societies to promote the exchange and development of knowledge
- share scientific experience and research with collegues and also with hand surgeons and allied professionals dealing with hand patients
- expand the practice of hand therapy so that an increasing number of patients with hand injuries may receive hand rehabilitation
