Exhibition overview

Leading authorities from across Europe and the world will present their findings in Plenary and Workshop sessions. Elsewhere in the scientific programme, oral communication and moderated poster sessions give many attendees the opportunity to orally present their work. With a scientific programme covering a range of topics relevant to basic scientists as well as practicing clinicians, EAS 2016 is all about interaction and discussion – between researchers and clinicians, between senior and early-career scientists - an opportunity to develop your own ideas through sharing them with others.
