Exhibition overview

The International Congress of Pediatric Pulmonology (CIPP) is the only international meeting devoted to Pediatric Pulmonology.

Over the years, CIPP has acquired a reputable status among practitioners, researchers and academicians as the forum for new information, treatment guidelines, interactions and exchange of ideas between leading specialists and practitioners in Pediatric Pulmonology from both developed and developing countries. CIPP is attended by doctors treating children with chest diseases and conditions from over 80 countries.

Common themes of the congresses included asthma and respiratory allergies, respiratory infections and its complications, neonatal lung diseases and its outcomes, cystic fibrosis, sleep disordered breathing, critical care, and rare lung diseases.
