Exhibition overview

The European Group for Blood and Marrow Transplantation (EBMT) is a non-profit organisation that was established in 1974 to allow scientists and physicians involved in clinical bone marrow transplantation to share their experience and develop co-operative studies. The EBMT is devoted to the promotion of all aspects associated with the transplantation of haematopoietic stem cells from all donor sources and donor types including basic and clinical research, education, standardisation, quality control, and accreditation for transplant procedures.

EBMT has over 4,042 members based in 545 transplant centres in 58 countries worldwide. They are mainly centres active in transplantation of any kind of haematopoietic stem cells (HSC) or any other organisation involved in the care of donors and recipients of haematopoietic stem cells.
