The meeting encompasses a wide range of session formats, which cater to all styles of learning. The Video Learning Sessions will be featured again this year, addressing liver, kidney and lung cancer, as well as the important topic of pain management. Clinical management is an essential pre-requisite for offering a robust interventional oncology service. To support inter-disciplinary collaborations and negotiations, a number of Multidisciplinary Tumour Boards will be held, discussing various liver and lung cancer cases. Alongside a wide range of technical advances, ECIO 2015 will cover both established and experimental applications, such as musculoskeletal tumours, lung metastases, and thyroid, adrenal and prostate lesions.
